WE ARE VERY ACTIVE BUYERS OF ALL PRE-1920 LATIN AMERICAN CROWNS in average through choice grades. In order to maintain our rather sizeable stock, we often pay up to 80% OF OUR RETAIL to obtain interesting groups. PLEASE WRITE IF YOU HAVE PIECES FOR SALE!

BRAZIL The world's fifth largest country is rapidly becoming a major world power. Her extensive coinage, struck under Portuguese authority beginning in 1695, is rapidly becoming scarcer and more expensive. Rare and choice pieces are seldom offered at any price in the U.S. marketplace. Collectors and investors interested in this series should review our list No. 45, December 1978; that 16-page list had much commentary about the Brazilian economic and numismatic situation. Concurrently you might note how many of the pieces offered therein have not been on the market even once since then!

PEDRO II - DECIMAL ISSUES Now that Krause and Yeoman have assigned "Y" numbers (rather than "C" numbers) to the 1849-1889 empire issues of Brazil, we expect to see an increasing demand for these coins by type and date. For the present, we have arranged our stock in order by the Yeoman number rather than by denomination.

GUATEMALA This, the largest country in Central America, was the colonial capital of all Central America during the Spanish colonial period. The 1733-1753 cob coinage, struck by hammer, is always quite crude but often charming. Pillar pieces (1754-1771) are strikingly attractive in decent condition. Bust types are usually encountered in VG to VF condition with the exception of about ten dates found together in a superb uncirculated hoard. It is interesting to note that the pre-1774 issues have a G mintmark while the later issues are NG; the G is for the original Guatemala City (now Antigua) while the NG is for Nueva Guatemala where a new mint was built following a massive earthquake in 1773. Republic issues of the Central American Federation are among the world's most beautiful coinage when in mint condition. Factually, all republic issues, even through 1970, are attractive, stimulating and challenging to collect, whether by date or type. Due to Guatemala's popularity as a tourist area for North Americans, we suspect that many individuals will become intrigued by this lovely coinage and advance its popularity by a considerable degree.

NOTE: We believe this collection surpasses any of the five other significant post-1858 groups we have offered since 1972. In fact, this may be the most complete group offered simultaneously in the past fifteen years. Also, please note that many of the common dates not listed herein are available but only in inferior condition. The $100+ pieces will be offered on our list #52 next month in the "Choice and Rare" section of that list.

MEXICO The most popular of all Latin American coinage has been produced in this historically important country since around 1536. Commencing with the fascinating Carlos & Johanna cob pieces, through the very crude cob period, into the beautiful pillar coinage and ending with the bust coinage, this country had a multi-dimensional and intriguing numismatic history as a Spanish colonial capital. As the war of independence was being fought, as many as eleven mints produced "emergency" coinage which was often quite crude but equally engaging. Republic issues of the nineteenth century were produced in fourteen mints; the collecting of coinage from that period is also enriched by brief series like the Iturbide, Maximilian and "hookneck" items. Finally, post-1905 coinage is rather simplistic but extraordinarily popular in its own right.

NICARAGUA This small Central American nation has had the world's attention focused upon it during a recent bloody civil war which deposed its long time dictator Somoza. In December 1972, another tragedy in the form of a massive earthquake exposed the existence of Nicaragua to the remainder of the world's population. Unfortunately, this small country is rather ordinary except in time of disaster. Similarly, its coinage is quite mundane and easy to obtain in circulated condition. However, it is curious to note that a completely UNCIRCULATED date collection is probably impossible to assemble!

PANAMA and PARAGUAY Due to the length of the selections of the other countries herein offered, the listing of the coins of Panama and Paraguay will be on list 52 in October.

PERU The first coinage of South America was struck in Lima around the year 1565. Technically, "PERU" coinage includes the colonial issues of both Lima and Potosi since both were within the viceroyalty of Peru. Lima cob types are generally cruder and decidedly more scarce than parallel Potosi issues. The pillar coinage of 1752-1772 is a truly beautiful coinage with many if not most of the pieces currently undervalued.

Early republic issues (1822-1857) for the most part feature the standing liberty design. Emanating from the four mints in Lima, Cuzco, Arequipa and Pasco, these pieces are particularly attractive and are numismatically challenging to locate in nice condition.

The Sol system coinage of 1863-1917 is one of the most popular and inexpensive of all Latin American coinages to collect by date (and major variety) in choice condition. Post-World War I issues are more interesting and worthwhile than contemporary issues of many other countries. Currently, Peruvian coinage is probably the most popularly collected of all South American countries.

VENEZUELA The wealthiest per-capita country in South America, primarily due to their tremendous oil wealth and some advanced industry, has the largest number of sophisticated coin collectors in all of Latin America. Beginning with the earliest issues under Spain and continuing through the pre-1843 republican coinage, one finds a fascinating array of types. Many are both rare and expensive. Issues of 1843-1877 are popular by type and to some degree as dates and varieties. The 1879-1973 issues mostly feature the bust of Simon Bolivar, considered the "George Washington of South America"; these pieces are pursued by date by a very sizeable group of knowledgeable collectors. As a result, that series is the most expensive in the Latin American series based on value per degree of rarity. Nonetheless, for over ten years, nearly all coins of Venezuela have steadily increased in value and continue to do so even today.
